President Clinton Comes to Shabazz
 Thirty years after Martin Luther King, Jr. visited South Side High School, President William Jefferson Clinton came to Malcolm X Shabazz High School to celebrate Newark, promote scholastic achievement, and to launch a new program called New Markets. President Clinton was accompanied by Jayson Williams and fellow stars of the New Jersey Nets, corporate leaders, Rev. Jesse Jackson, Paul Tagliabue of the NFL, and Mayor Sharpe James. Congressman Donald Payne, who traveled with President Clinton on Air Force One, was instrumental in getting the President to come to Newark. President Clinton's new proposal, New Markets, was created to spur development in cities like Newark that have not grown along with the rest of the country during the country's economic boom. The new program would guarantee 15 billion in financial aid for cities like Newark. While unemployment has dramatically declined in Newark, it is still above the national average. "You need more jobs and more businesses," Clinton told the cheering students of Shabazz. "If we don't do this now, at a time of great prosperity, we will never get around to it." Before the President appeared, he met with a group of 17 students in the school's library. These students were members of Project Grad (Graduation Really Achieves Dreams), a scholarship program that enables students to attend college on a $ 6,000 yearly scholarships. Lucent Technologies and the Ford Foundation sponsor the program. Students must maintain a 2.5 grade-point average and attend summer sessions. While the President spoke to Project Grad students in the library, senior Chaz Moses introduced Rev. Jackson to the assembled students. Rev. Jackson dazzled students with his oratorical skills. Rev. Jackson's message was one of hope and encouragement. "I am somebody," Jackson shouted. "Respect me, protect me, never neglect me. My mind is a pearl. I can learn anything in the world. Keep hope alive. Keep hope alive." Students responded enthusiastically to Jackson's appeals. Students and teachers responded passionately to the President's appeals. "I am so proud to be a Shabazz teacher and to be part of history," said Ms. Veronica Bridges.

President Clinton's New Markets initiative is part of a broad package of incentives and money from government and private corporations like Prudential and ATT to help lessen urban unemployment, improve educational opportunities, and develop stronger ties between private industry and urban schools like Shabazz.

Joining the President were the co-owners of the New Jersey Nets, Lewis Katz and Raymond Chambers, who are pushing a drive to bring the Nets to Newark to join the New Jersey Arts Center and baseball's Newark

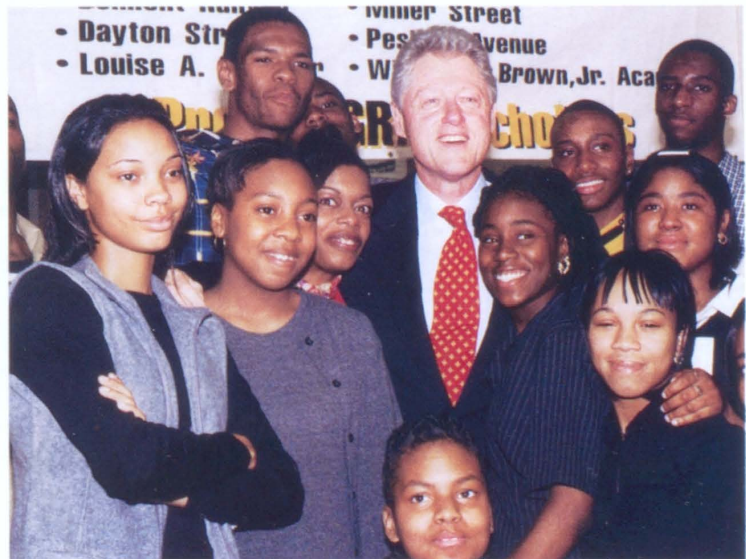

Bears. The owners and players of the Nets announced that they would adopt Shabazz as a sign of their commitment to inner-city schools. Jayson Williams told cheering students that he would have a party for 200 students in his Clinton, New Jersey, mansion for those students who do community service.

"You know we throw some good parties," Williams informed the excited students. "You can come to my house and party hardy."

Williams told the band that they would receive new uniforms and instruments from Katz as a sign of their involvement. An amused and surprised Katz nodded an assent.

Shabazz students recognized the significance of the President's visit. Senior Valinda Green expressed the sentiments of many Shabazz students, "It was nice to know the President cared about us, and that Shabazz is going into the millennium making history."

To The First Class Of The Millennium

The class of 2000 has struggled and managed to stay on top and will continue to stay there. These past four years at Malcolm X Shabazz High School have been filled with joy and sadness. We were sad when we lost a beloved classmate, Shareem Reid, who was dedicated to our senior class. She will always be in our hearts and memories. We were joyous when the President of the United States, Bill Clinton visited our school and made history.

We would like to thank our parents, teachers, and staff for being supportive and caring. Time has taught us that those who try will be successful through the years. While we travel along our different paths in life, we will strive for a better understanding of humankind and work harder to achieve our aspirations. We will take our rightful place in society and accomplish our highest goals. Our minds move forward to seek new and better things that are out there waiting for us. We are willing and able to face whatever comes our way. We will conquer the challenges set before us in the years to come.

Congratulations to the Class of the Millennium.

Mr. Farrakhan and Mr. January talk over school problems.

Superintendent Bolden and Mr. Pashall await President Clinton's arrival at Shabazz.

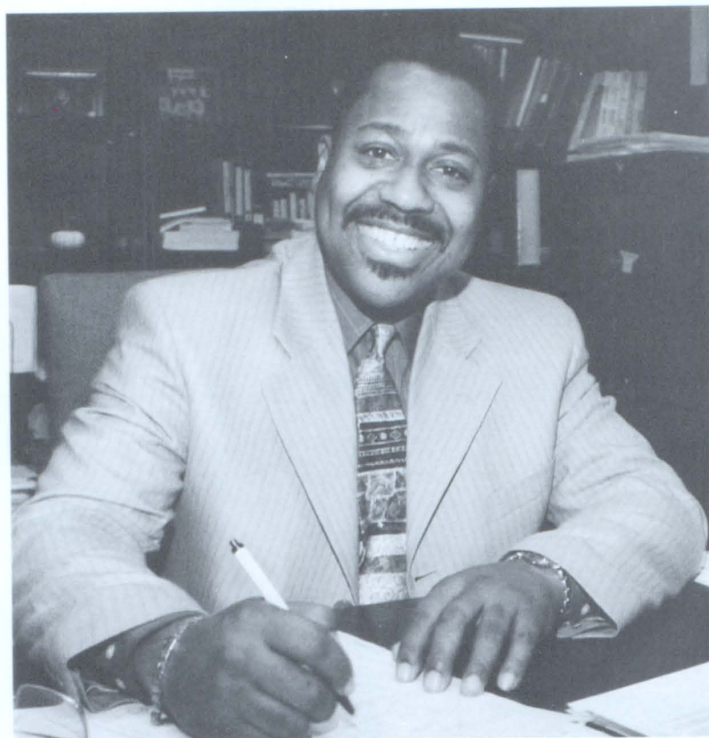

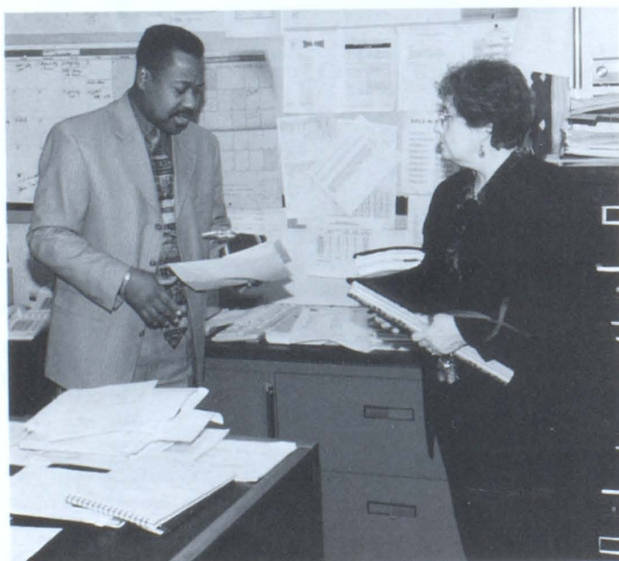

Principal's Message

Because you are the first graduates in the "new millennium" there are great expectations placed upon you. From this class must come the political leaders, head surgeons, master teachers, company chief executive officers, and well educated individuals to fill all the positions in order to sustain our society in this new century. Yes the expectations are great but we have done all we can to prepare you for your new role. We hope the foundation you have built here is firm and secure enough to support the life structure that you choose.

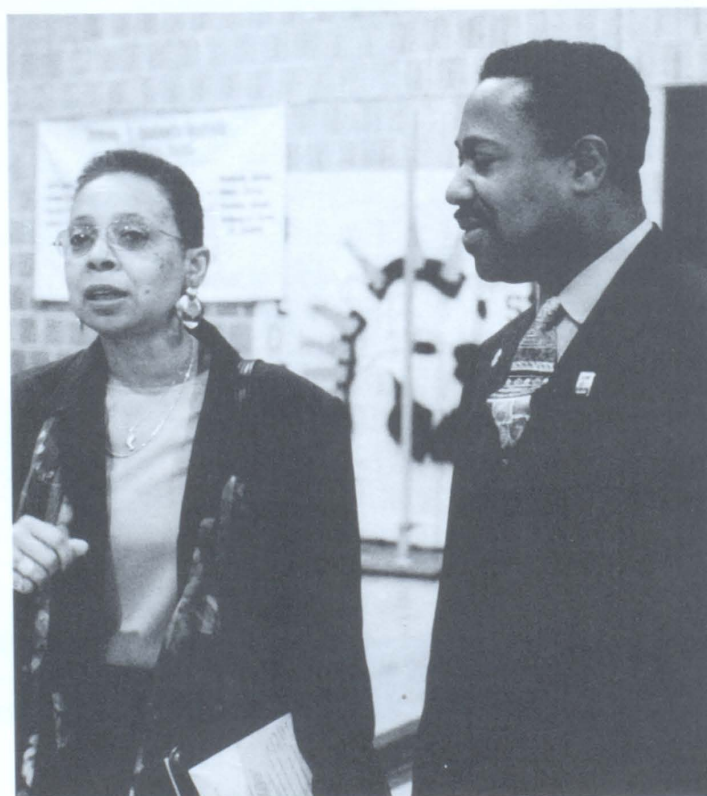

Graduation day from high school for each of you may be likened unto the period of development of a baby bird. When the parents feel it is sufficiently strong to fly; they push it out of the nest so it can try its new wings. The class of 2000 will have this experience on graduation day. We are certain that each of you will fly. Even though you may falter at times, you may even have a few rough bumps before you are finally able to soar into the sky with the smoothness and serenity of a bird, confident of its wings and its own power. But this will come with constant effort and faith in your own ability, not only to achieve, but also to excel into the leadership roles. I challenge you therefore not to be satisfied with simple achievement wherever you find yourself beyond graduation, but always "work to excel," and soar to the top.

For those of us who remain in the Shabazz community, let us dare to accept the same challenges for ourselves.

SECURITY ON THE JOB

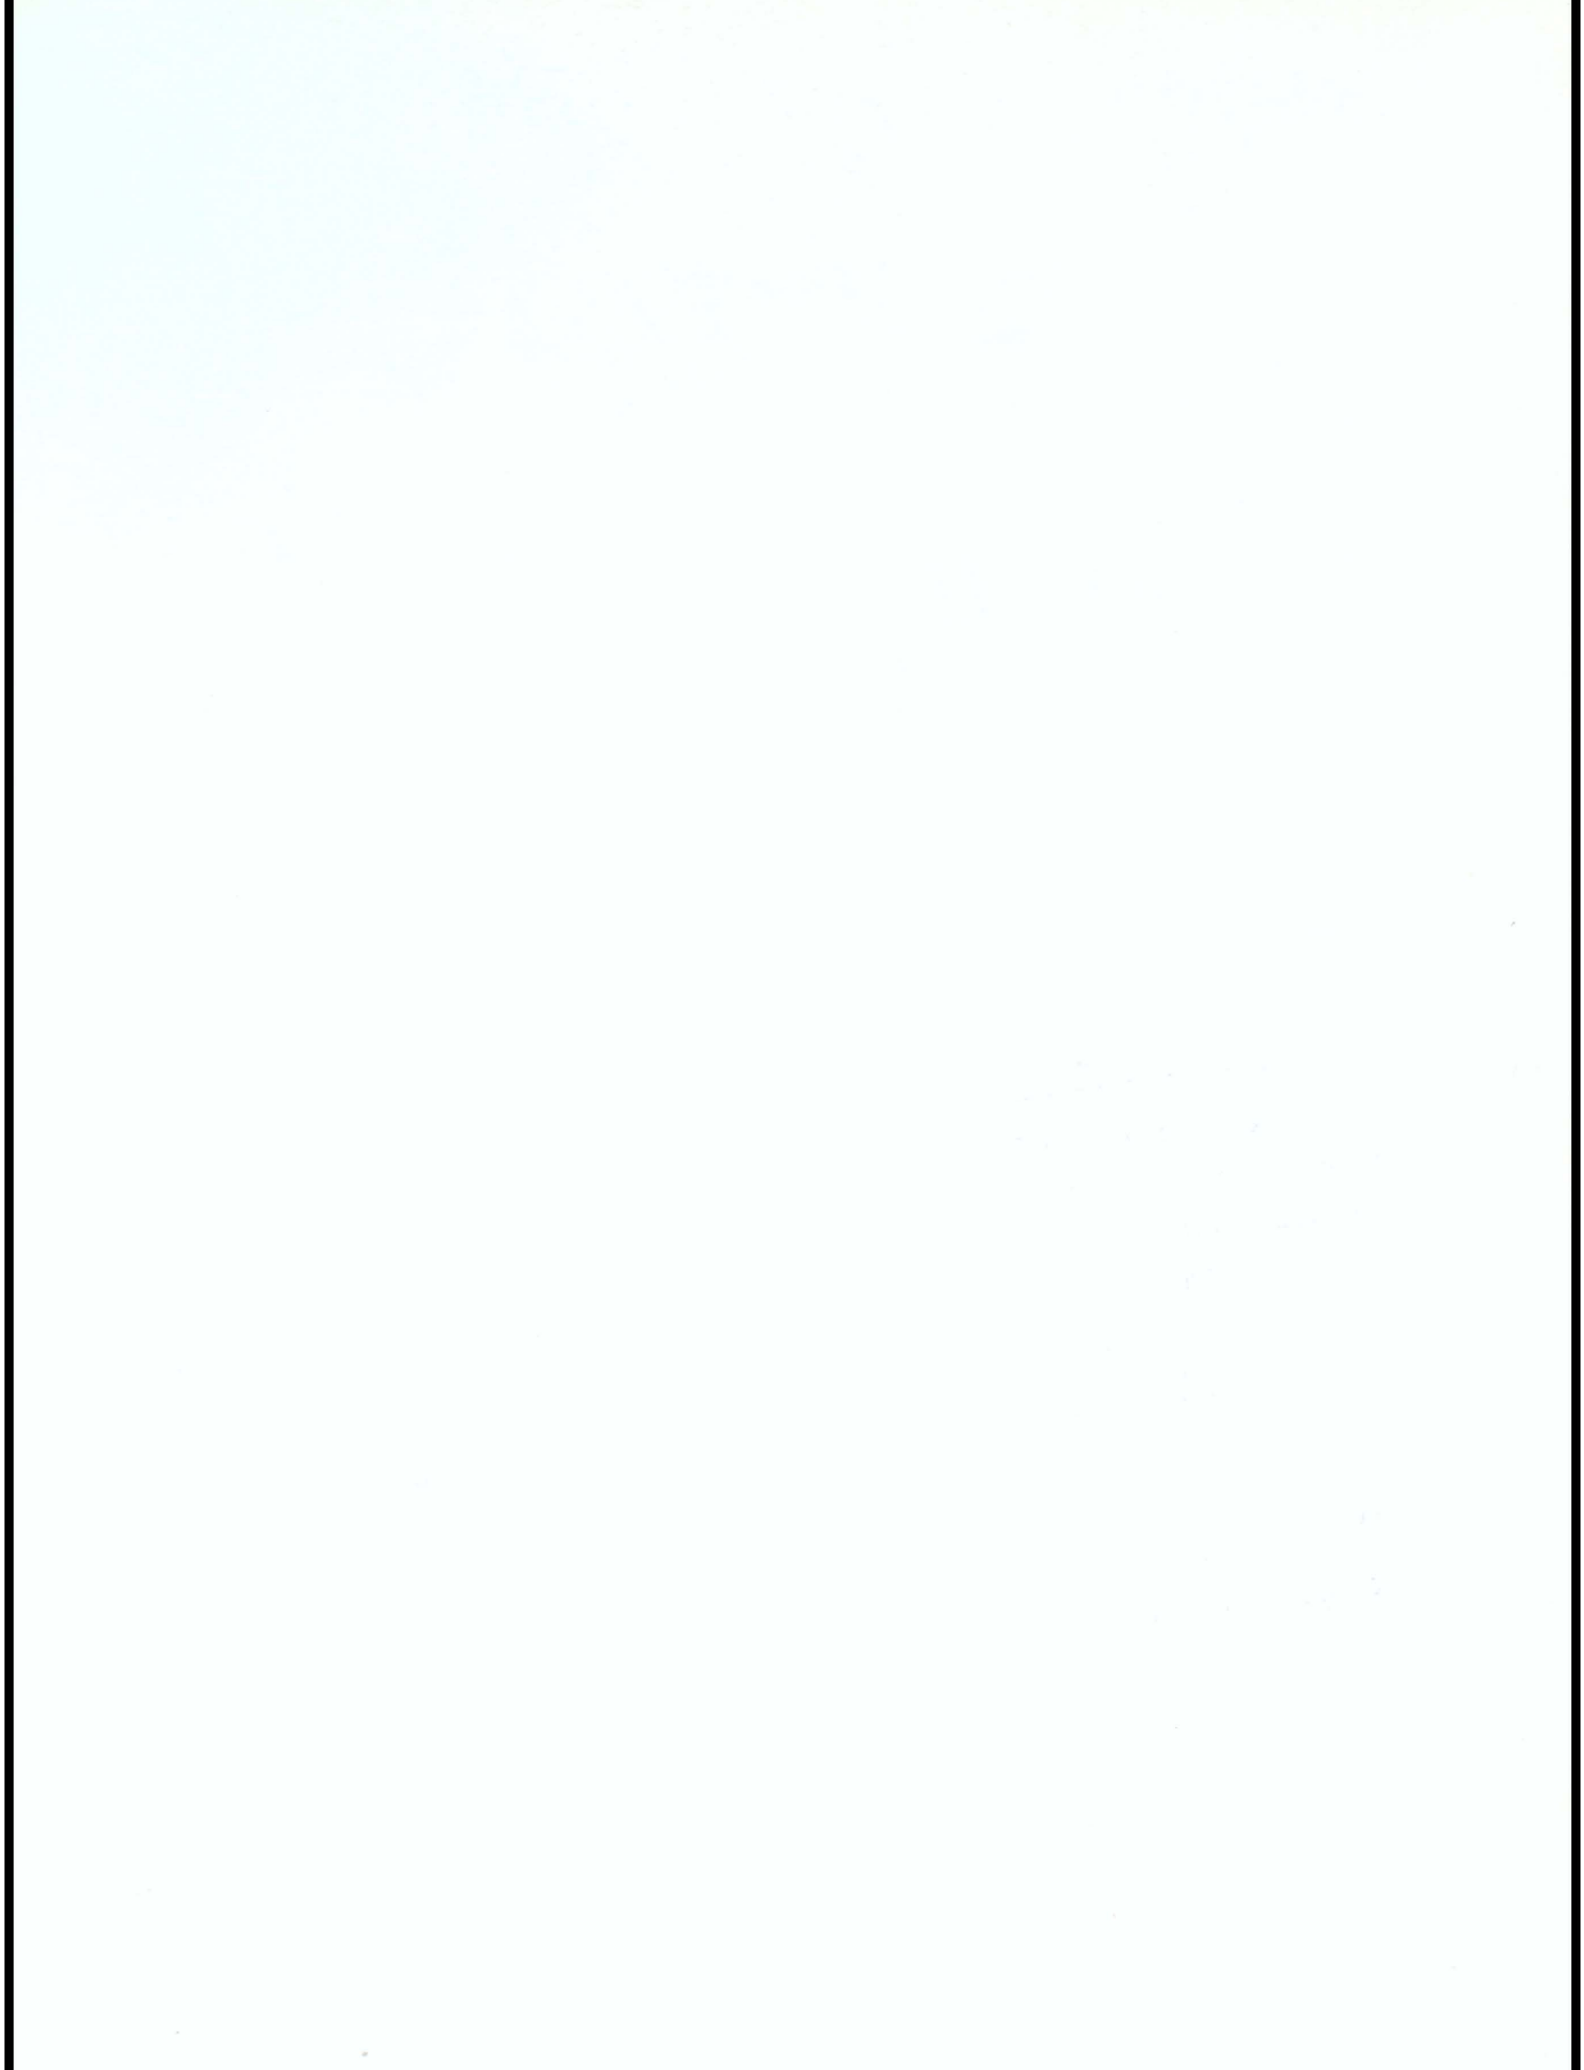

OUR ALMA MATER

"Fair Weather"

It's Always fair weather,
When Malcolm X Shabazz gets together.
Though the world may forsake thee,
We will always loyal be.
For it's always fair weather,
When Malcolm X Shabazz gets together.
We'll be loyal forever,
To our colors ...
Black and Gold.
